Key Messages on Women, Land and Peace

Sustaining peace through women's empowerment and increased access to land and property rights in fragile and conflict-affected contexts"

15.02.2022

Background

The role of women's is pivotal to the prevention and resolution of conflicts, peacebuilding and peacekeeping. This role is often undetected and is consistently underreported. Women's role as peacemakers, mediators and negotiators in their own communities needs to be given more attention and women's contributions to peace initiatives need to be expanded. This involves increased participation in peace negotiations and peacebuilding initiatives, as well as peacekeeping, humanitarian assistance, and post-conflict rehabilitation. To be able to do so effectively, women must feel safe in their communities and able to engage in decision-making and planning. Secure housing, land, and property (HLP) rights are enabler of both.

Women's housing, land, and property rights contribute to preventing and recovering from conflict and fragility by reducing the likelihood of violent conflicts re-igniting and by assisting communities in emerging and recovering from war. These rights increase food security, agricultural productivity and production, and they are critical to promote the realization of other interconnected human rights, such as an adequate standard of living, adequate housing, protection against forced eviction, and gender equality. Further, secure land rights improve the trust in institutions, a critical factor for state and peacebuilding in fragile settings.

The "Key messages on sustaining peace through women's empowerment and increased access to land and property rights in fragile and conflict-affected contexts" were developed based on the field experience of UN-Habitat, the Global Land Tool Network, the HLP Area of Responsibility of the Global Protection Cluster and their partners in fragile and crisis affected contexts. The Key Messages, first published in the occasion of the Global Protection Forum on 26 November 2021, are a quick reference on how to empower women and protect their housing, land and property rights in fragile and crisis affected contexts, and why this is an essential element to sustain peace and stability. The messages are relevant for different groups of women and girls, independently of their ethnicity, status, disability, sexual orientation, and any other characteristic they identify with.

Objective of the event

The objective of the webinar is to launch and promote the key messages among a wide spectrum of stakeholders to increase the discussion and understanding about the nexus among women, land and peace.
